

The 17th March 1943.

I actually feel some qualms in my own heart, at the prospect of losing him, but since I shall retire sooner than the mechanics here, I feel he should be in such a position where his abilities can be utilised properly.

You will find him, devoted, sensitive, and a quick learner.

I feel guilty of having done a lot of special pleading, but knowing that I shan't be misunderstood, I have not hesitated:

Hope this finds you in best of health;

Yours Sincerely

The 6th Dec 1942:

My dear Krishnan,

I am extremely sorry, that you have not been able to come to Dacca: Of course travelling now-a-days is not at all comfortable, and the journey from Allahabad to Dacca, involves too many changes to be writing: I hope you are doing well with the family, and your work in the University is progressing smoothly.

I have not yet received your report on Krishna Das's thesis: Your presence here would have helped us immensely in classifying the thesis candidates, but as it is not to be, kindly send me, your marks, and suggestions of any ~~in~~ ⁱⁿ ~~to~~ ^{to} at me, I am thinking of having the viva in the afternoon the 10th at the latest, and I shall remain anxious for your decision.

You must have read about the Dacca Convocation, with its attendant unpleasant features: things are so shaping that ~~we~~^I feel that it is better perhaps to retire, honourably in time ~~from~~ from this mad place.

What about the Science Congress?

Yours sincerely

Dear Krishnan, I would like you to go through the records ~~which~~ accompanying this letter of Mr. Natarajan, an acquaintance of mine, whom I recently met, and I shall be very glad if you can do anything for him. This young man is a misfit in the present job, and will perhaps be better off in an ~~an~~ atmosphere more congenial to him. I cannot easily say where you should try to put him, but I hope after going through the records you will be better able to ~~to~~ choose ^{it} than myself.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF SCIENCE
At the present moment Mr.
Natarajan is having himself thoroughly examined at the Tropical School for the hidden sources of trouble. I think however a better prospect, will be the real remedy in his case.

I shall be glad to have your reaction about the matter soon. Hope you are doing well.

Yours sincerely
Subbar

P.S. I understand Natarajan has applied for Indian administrative Service. Can you help? He will do well in any class 1 service under the Central Govt.
