"INDIAN WILDERNESS - REMINESCENCES OF A NATURALIST IN THE FIELD"

by

SHAHID ALI

An illustrated narrative ; a peep into the Indian Subcontinents' astonishing diversity of vegetation-types and animal life, and the equally amazing ways in which these have adapted to the very diverse and often inhospitable conditions in many habitats of the region.

As a student of bird behaviour, Shahid Ali has had the opportunity to spend extended periods of time studying birds in a variety of habitats, as well as surveying a spectrum of diverse environments to see how birds adapt to different and changing conditions.

It is the speaker's belief that much light can be shed on several of nature's apparent riddles by a dynamic exchange of notes and ideas between biologists and amateurs from many walks of life.

This informal presentation will, it is hoped, encourage many to peep a little harder than they did before into the natural world around them.
