TRAVANCORE,

APRIL 14, 39.

My dear Doctor,

Mr.P.K.Seshan writes to me from Calcutta that you have come down to Waltair and that you might be embarking for Europe from Cochin. May I take the opportunity of inviting you to Travancore. If you are coming down to your village in South India, Trivandrum and Quilon are within easy reach. I shall be glad to meet you and take you round Travancore and leave you at Cochin.

Incidentally I may also mention that one of my sons is in Oxford and will be happy to place himself at your service.

Our Colleges are closed and the students and professors scattered over various places.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

S. Krishna Iyer

My dear Doctor,

I am much obliged to you for your letter of the 19th of April.

My car will be waiting at Kottarakara on the 25th afternoon and very probably I shall also be there.
If your luggage be heavy, we can arrange to have them
brought over by bus.

I shall be happy to have you as my guest and take you round such parts of Travancore as are possible within the short time at your disposal.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Doctor,

By this time you might have received an invitation from the Travancore University. I need not add that we shall be happy to have yourself and family in our midst for a few days.

Dr. Moudgill has been called home unexpectedly. But that will not make any difference.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

S. Krishna Iyer
