Dear Ram:

Let me congratulate you for your recent climb to yet another height. I have still not heard from you about my last letter. Now please hand over the copy of the lecture notes to Mr. Subramaniam if it is ready or else he would give you five rupees to cover the mailing charges. I very urgently need the address of Perdhiman for a particular reason. The Chairman of the Division has agreed to sponsor my case for a Professor's position. The only uncertain element is the Director. He is going to contact some people and Perdhiman's name was often mentioned by him. I wish to extract as much help as I can from him. He also knows you quite well and therefore you also please keep this interest of mine in your mind. As far as possible, kindly keep this information confidential. Regarding Chanchal's case, she will be automatically promoted. Unfortunately, she was able to smell the air, and as a result she does not look kindly towards me these days.

How about the information that I requested regarding the Equatorial jet studies. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

(S. KRISHAN)
