Dear Mr. Pittie,

f. 11/98

Unfortunately I couldn't make it to Hyderabad this time. However, rest assured that I regularly will return to India and that I will contact you if I come to Hyderabad.

Could you please acknowledge receipt of the enclosed book and recording to Per Alström.

Best regards and hope to meet you in the future.

Per Alström

BirdLife International is a global organization represented in over 100 countries. Its aim is to save the world's birds and their habitats for the benefit of wildlife and people.

Of the 9,000 species of bird in the world 1,111 are threatened with extinction. It was in response to this startling fact that the Rare Bird Club was formed in 1988, aiming to recruit one member for each of the world's threatened birds. His Royal Highness Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands became the first member and Honorary President. Every member receives a specially commissioned painting, by an internationally renowned artist, of the rare bird of their choice from the World List of Threatened Birds. This is an acknowledgement of their contribution to the conservation of rare birds and their habitats.

Dear Mr Undeland,

I received your packet a couple of weeks ago, and am extremely thankful to you for taking the trouble of mailing it to me.

It is unfortunate that you could not come to Hyderabad this year. If you plan to visit India in the future, please do include Hyderabad in your itinerary. Sykes's Crested Lark, Yellowthroated Bulbul, etc., should be temptation enough I suppose!

Thanking you once again, and wishing you a wonderful Christmas and New Year!

Yours truly,
