International Conference on "Global Warming and Climate Change: Perspectives from Developing Countries" held at New Delhi
from 21st February to 23rd February, 1989

No. DIR/F-33

March 31, 1989

Dr. M.S. Swaminathan

To All Conference Participants

I am writing to thank you for your valuable and active participation in the above conference. The conference has been very well received, and apart from getting significant and widespread coverage in the media, both in India and abroad, it has also been referred to in several subsequent meetings and discussions around the world. What is of particular relevance and satisfaction is the fact that the New Delhi conference was the first one of its kind to have been held in a developing country and, therefore, is a major step in defining and articulating perspectives of the developing countries on this global problem.

I have great pleasure in enclosing a copy of the conference statement and final list of participants for your information and record. The proceedings of the conference are still under preparation because we have as yet not received all the papers presented, and you would be receiving a copy when ready in due course.

Thanking you once again,

(R.K. Pachauri)
