Mr.P.K.Sukumaran is at present working as a Senior Research Assistant in the Human Variation Department of the Centre. He came to this institute in June 1953 with about 14 years' experience from the Pasteur Institute, Coonoor. He soon settled himself in the research programme of the Indian Cancer Research Centre and satisfied his superiors with his technical competence, methodical work and painstaking habits. For the last 5 years Mr.Sukumaran has been working as a Senior Research Assistant in the Department of Human Variation and has carried out worthwhile research work. He has to his credit 17 publications, of which 13 are the result of his studies here.

I have received consistently good reports about Mr.Sukumaran and have no doubt that he would make the best use of the opportunity he would get for training in the U.K. and that he would return to this Centre as a valuable addition to the Human Variation Department.
