My dear Sir,

I had written to you about a fortnight ago, expressing my fervent desire to work under you in your beautifully equipped laboratory, and requesting whether you could offer me any suitable job or at least facilities to work honorarily. I have had no reply from you so far. I do not know whether you had considered it as impertinent on my part to have taken the ~~liberty~~ of liberty of writing to you about the matter. If so I might please be excused.

As I had stated in my previous letter I had reached nearly the end of the teather so far as research facilities go, in this laboratory, and my work has come practically to a stand still. I would therefore once gain request you to be so good as to consider my request favourably and let me have a reply.

I had also given you copies of the reprints of my publications. I shall be obliged if you could let me have your opinion and considered criticism about them.

With regards

Yours Sincerely,

V.P. Narayanan Nambiyar

My dear Sir,

I had written to you twice requesting you to be so good as to let me know whether you could offer me an opening in your laboratory or at least permit me to work in case I am able to take a few months off from my present duties. I have had no reply from you.

The vacation for the college is fast approaching and I am venturing to remind you once again about my request. I hope you will
