I am pleased to be able to inform you that your paper, which has been accepted for publication in the journal, has now been sub-edited. Whilst going through the paper our sub-editor has noticed certain queries which are detailed on the attached sheet. Please answer these queries by the deadline indicated above when we shall proceed with the typesetting. In addition to the proofs being checked by the Editor and our proofreaders, a set of proofs will be sent to you in due course but please note that, because of the cost and delay involved, corrections should be restricted to those arising out of typesetting errors. In view of this it is therefore essential that final last-minute amendments to your paper are made now. If you have any such amendments would you please forward details with the answers to our queries.

If, in reply to these queries, you submit a new version of your typescript output on a word-processor, it is essential that you indicate clearly in red ink all amendments made to the original version.

Yours sincerely,

Bernice Ostle
